

It's Sheriff Thomas now

By TALI HUNT

Jefferson County Sheriff Dave Thomas officially took over the department Wednesday. By Friday afternoon he said the whole transition process — from assigning duties to physically moving into his new work space — has gone very smoothly. So far, the bumpiest transition the office — and Thomas — are having is remembering not to address former two-term Sheriff John Wallace as “Sheriff” since Wallace remains in the office as a chief deputy. Thomas said he is excited about continuing to build on the foundation he and Wallace started to build eight years ago. “We’re going to be the best sheriff’s department we can be for the citizens of this community,” said Thomas. “...and with the deputies and team we have now I know we’ll be able to continue to move in the right direction...we have great deputies here and that’s a blessing.” While Thomas was the department’s chief deputy he was part of a group that is working to build a network of resources and individuals to act as a Drug Task Force in Jefferson County and some of the neighboring counties. He said officers from the participating agencies will be assigned to the task force to focus efforts on fighting the use and distribution of narcotics and other illegal drugs. The task force also will partner with the Indiana State Police. Thomas said he knows there is a great potential for the task force to make an impact on the local community, thanks to the shared network of information it will provide to all departments. He said he plans to assign a detective to the task SEE: IT'S SHERIFF THOMAS Back Page, Column 1

Deputy firefighters make the list of needs

By TRENTON SCROGGINS

When a house fire broke out Friday morning, Deputy Volunteer Fire Chief Mike Hazelwood and his crew received the call while sitting at a McDonald's in North Vernon. The crew had been traveling north to explore a potential vehicle donation to the department as part of its rebuilding project, a project that, according to its Facebook page, plans to get the firefighters “back on their feet” after a mid-December structural fire left the crew without a building, vehicles or equipment. Since the fire, the department has received much attention, particularly on Facebook, where the story of their loss and need for assistance reached donors from as far as New York and Texas. Within a week of the incident, the German Township Fire Department from the Evansville area, donated a 1979 pumper vehicle to Deputy's cause, and, according to Hazelwood, another vehicle donation is in progress and that vehicle may be retrieved within the next week. The crew started a Facebook page for donations to their cause soon after the December fire, and since has raised more than $4,000, just $900 short of its $5,000 goal. The department also has released a list on its Facebook page outlining the crew's needs during the rebuilding process. A fish fry will be Saturday, Feb. 2, at the Kent Volunteer Fire Company from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to benefit the Deputy department. “We have gotten a lot of messages and phone calls from people wanting to donate equipment,” the department's Facebook post reads. “We have finally had a chance to sit down and come up with a list of items that we need. If you or your department have any of these items that you would like to donate, please feel free to contact us. Thank you.”

$5,000 bond set in Madison school threats

By TALI HUNT

Bond was set at $5,000 Friday afternoon for the Madison High School student who has been charged with making threats to Madison Consolidated Schools and to MCS faculty on Dec. 3, 2018. Hanna R. Warren, 18, of Madison, was taken into custody Thursday at MCHS, she was held at the Jefferson County Jail and bond was set during a hearing in the Jefferson County Superior Court. If her bond is paid, she will be released and placed under electronic monitoring. The probable cause affidavit in the case details the nature of the email threats made to MCS and school faculty and how law enforcement traced the accounts sending the threats to Warren's cell phone. With assistance from the FBI, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department was able to identify four Gmail accounts that on Dec. 3 created seven different emails, starting from just before 10:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. The emails included threats to go to the high school within a time frame with a deadly weapon, specific threats to administrators and taunting phrases to the school and law enforcement, such as “So your really trying to find me. You'll never find out...” Yancy Denning, a detective with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, said tracking the source of the Gmail accounts and the emails was tricky because of software used on the device from which the emails were sent. The software gives users anonymity on the internet by making user data anonymous — including IP logs and other information. Students can use the software to bypass wifi filters set by schools. Warren's name was in some of the threatening emails, identified as being part of making the accounts and writing the emails. Law enforcement first questioned her on the day the threats were made. Warren denied having any involvement in the crimes during interviews with local police and FBI agents, the affidavit says. Throughout the investigation law enforcement obtained confirmation — through wireless account information, historic cell-site data and a digital extraction of the device — that Warren's mobile device was affiliated with all of the different Gmail accounts. According to the affidavit, the Gmail accounts were listed in the device's logs of “User Accounts” that had been deleted. The web history contained content related to three of the account's new account notifications, which users receive upon activating a new email address. “The digital extraction of the motorola provided direct evidence that the (Gmail accounts) were accessed on the device,” the affidavit says. Warren admitted to creating at least one of the email accounts in an interview with the FBI, the affidavit says. This account, which sent the first threat, she said had been created for her ex-boyfriend to use. “Warren, by her own omission, stated that nobody else had access to the motorola when the threats were made,” says the affidavit. After her arrest Thursday, Warren continued to tell law enforcement “that she did not make the email accounts or send the emails,” says the affidavit. White House trying to stop senior raises WASHINGTON (AP) — The Trump administration says it's exploring ways to prevent a pay raise for senior White House staff and cabinet officials during the partial government shutdown now in its 14th day. White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders says the administration “is aware of the issue” and is “exploring options to prevent this from being implemented while some federal workers are furloughed.” The raises are the result of a pay freeze for top federal officials that is expiring because of the shutdown. They were first reported by The Washington Post. Trump, who is insisting on full funding for a wall on the border with Mexico, had told reporters earlier in the day that he “might consider” asking cabinet secretaries and other top officials to forgo the raises. Vice President Mike Pence said he would.

Indiana OKs new rules for veterans’ agency after scrutiny

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana officials have approved new rules to rein in the state’s veterans’ affairs agency after its leader resigned amid reports he awarded grants intended for financially struggling veterans to the department’s own employees.

The rules impose income limits and other restrictions that likely would have prevented the Indiana Department of Veterans’ Affairs from awarding more than $40,000 to nearly a dozen middle-income employees.

The Indiana Veterans’ Affairs Commission voted Thursday to formally adopt the rules. The department’s leader, James Brown, resigned last month following reports he awarded money to veterans who worked under him that did not qualify for the aid.

Brown’s resignation came after The Indianapolis Star and WRTV-TV questioned the agency’s administration of Indiana’s Military Family Relief Fund, which was created in 2007 to aid veterans facing financial hardship. Brown denied wrongdoing.

The $1.7 million annual program is funded with fees from specialty veteran license plates, but a lack of rules allowed Brown, a decorated Vietnam veteran, to award grants to his employees.

While the agency employees who got the grants were veterans, applications and personnel records obtained by The Indianapolis Star cast doubt on whether they should have received money through the program, given that their state salaries were $40,000 to $50,000 a year.

The newly approved rules take discretion away from the agency’s director for grants above $2,500, and instead require review and approval by the commission, which is appointed by the governor. Under the rules, only veterans whose gross household income is no more than twice the federal poverty guideline may receive help. That’s a limit of $24,120 for an individual or $49,200 for a household of four.

“There was discretion before and perhaps there weren’t the best decisions made, but this rule will take care of any ambiguity,” said Commission Chairman Erika Steuterman, a retired Air Force major general.

Lawmakers required the commission to establish rules for the program in 2016, but veteran advocates had long expressed concerns about potential abuse. The commission began the rule-making process in 2016, but it stalled for more than a year before pressure from veteran advocates forced that work to begin again last May.

Democratic Rep. Karlee Macer of Indianapolis said it’s embarrassing that it took so long to get the rules in place.

“It’s taken almost three years to get accomplished and we’ve had a lot of shenanigans in between then,” she said. “It’s embarrassing to veterans and it’s embarrassing to our state.”

Bloomington compiles history of technology innovation

(Bloomington) Herald-Times — BLOOMINGTON — A compilation of Bloomington’s technological leaps and bounds is now available on the city’s website.

The city’s Information and Technology Services Department has published a timeline and history essay charting the top technological advances in Bloomington over the past 200 years. The city partnered with Martin Minner, a local historian and writer with a technology background, to conduct interviews and research how the public, private, nonprofit and education sectors worked together to spur innovation. The project is available online at bloomington.in.gov/departments/its

“A fascinating account of our community’s accomplishments in IT, this project also showcases the innovative thinking, bold decision making and hard work that have launched Bloomington into the new economy,” Bloomington Mayor John Hamilton said in a news release.

Major milestones include the arrival of the first train in Bloomington in 1853, the establishment of telegraph service in 1859, the publication of the first newspaper in 1877, the installation of the first electric light in 1881 and the introduction of telephone service in 1895. Mid-20th-century initiatives mention Bloomington’s role in manufacturing of the world’s first color television and the establishment of Indiana University’s Research Computing Center, both in 1954.

Foundation invests $500K in Fort Wayne downtown

(Fort Wayne) News-Sentinel — The Community Foundation of Greater Fort Wayne will invest $500,000 in Electric Works, which will transform the former General Electric campus into commercial, residential, office and educational space in downtown Fort Wayne.

The project’s first phase on the former GE west square includes about 712,000 square feet of space and an estimated project cost of $248 million.

“There is no doubt that Fort Wayne continues to stay relevant by advancing bold and transformative projects. The Community Foundation sees this as another opportunity to invest in the future of Fort Wayne and the region. Similar to our support and participation in the Riverfront and The Landing projects, we want to see the momentum continue.”

Brad Little, president and CEO of the Community Foundation, said in a statement.

“The Community Foundation’s belief in and support of Electric Works as a transformational project for our community’s long-term future is important,” said Kevan Biggs, of RTM Ventures, the development team behind Electric Works. “With its deep knowledge and keen understanding of Allen County’s most pressing needs, the Community Foundation board clearly recognizes how Electric Works will be a catalyst for community improvement. We welcome their investment and partnership as we enter the next phase of the project.”

Murder charge dropped in fire death of his mother, 94

Indiana — VALPARAISO — A newly seated prosecutor has dropped the prosecution of a man who had been charged with killing his 94-year-old mother in a 2015 fire at their house. Porter County Prosecutor Gary Germann’s motion to dismiss the case against 70-year-old Frederick Fegely of Ogden Dunes was granted without comment Friday by Porter Superior Court Judge Jeffrey Clymer.

Fegely was charged with murder and arson in the April 2015 death of Wanda Maxine Wunder. She died of smoke and soot inhalation and thermal injuries. Germann says there’s no evidence of an accelerant in the fire. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reports Fegely, who was incarcerated for three years, thanked the court for providing the funds needed to allow his public defender to hire the experts needed for his defense.

The Indiana Department of Transportation announced the re-opening after having initially estimated the cleanup of the animal fat-based substance could take a week. The spill came from a truck hauling the lubricant. East Chicago-based National Industrial Maintenance performed the cleanup by blasting hot water onto the substance to loosen it from the pavement, then vacuuming it up. The company says the spill made the pavement slippery.

can fluctuate wildly because of seasonal events. Kentucky’s statewide unemployment rate is seasonally adjusted to account for those changes. But the county unemployment rates are not seasonally adjusted because the sample sizes are too small. The unemployment rates are estimates designed to measure trends. The statistics do not include people who are unemployed and have not looked for a job in the past four weeks.

Powell is jailed on a murder charge in the September shooting death of Glenn Edwards. Police say Powell shot Glenn Edwards in the back after his truck got stuck in a ditch trying to leave Powell’s driveway. It’s unclear why Glenn Edwards was on Powell’s driveway. A psychiatric evaluation has been ordered for Powell.

Soldier held in case of dead woman at post

FORT CAMPBELL — A U.S. Army soldier has been taken into custody in connection to the death of a woman at the Fort Campbell post on the Kentucky-Tennessee border. Maj. Martin Meiners told The Leaf-Chronicle on Thursday that charges are pending against the soldier. Authorities didn’t immediately release the identities of those involved or describe the circumstances surrounding the woman’s death. Meiners says the woman was a civilian and died Dec. 18 in an “incident” at the post. He says the death is under investigation by the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command and that more details will be released when and if charges are filed.

The cure for writer’s block and deadlines

Dear Annie: I used to write every day — mostly poems but also essays. I really want to get back into it, but my motivation has waned. When I used to write every day, I was deeply depressed, and writing was an outlet, a stress reliever. I still want to write, but I never seem able to get myself to actually put pen to paper. I don’t want to believe that I have to be depressed in order to write. I know I’m also a good writer when I’m not depressed. I think that part of the problem is I’m scared of writing something bad, thinking that if I can’t write a beautiful first draft, there’s no point in writing at all. (Obviously, that’s a rather toxic mindset.) Do you have any tips for how I could discipline myself to actually write something while not worrying about the outcome? — Wrestling a Writing Rut

Dear Wrestling a Writing Rut: Every writer intimately knows the feelings you know it can be hard to meet self-imposed deadlines. One way to get external ones is to join a writing group or to take a writing class online or through a local college.

Perfectionism equals paralysis. Fortunately, the deadlines should help with this, too. When something is due, you have to make peace with the fact that it’s not perfect. Done is better than perfect.

Confront the fear of failure by writing a deliberately crummy story. Read it back to yourself. See that the world describe, including yours truly. Here are a few points to keep in mind.

Deadlines are your friend. If columns weren’t due weekly, I would never finish them. I did not end because you wrote something lackluster. This might also help to infuse some levity into your practice, which can be wind beneath the creative wings.

“Gamify” the process. Look for writing prompts online. Set a kitchen timer, and don’t pick up your pen until it dings, no matter what you’re writing.

Lastly, remember that the only way to really fail is to not try. So get writing.

Dear Annie: I’m a teenage boy. My mom hates that I’m gay. She says that the whole family is disappointed in me. But it’s only my dad’s side of the family who hates me for it. My mom can’t accept me for me.

I try to ignore her, but it will always be there. I’ve started drinking to block out the memories, but that only works for a little while. I have feelings of hatred toward her, but I care about her, too. I don’t know what to do. I believe that God made me this way. I feel so depressed and full of rage. — Black Sheep

Uffizi urges Germany to return stolen painting

By COLLEEN BARRY

MILAN (AP) — The director of the Uffizi Gallery in Florence is urging Germany to return a Dutch masterpiece stolen by Nazi troops during World War II, dramatizing its absence by hanging a black and white photo of the work with the label “Stolen” in three languages.

Eike Schmidt said in a New Year’s appeal Tuesday that the still-life “Vase of Flowers” by Dutch artist Jan van Huysum is in the hands of a German family who hasn’t returned it despite numerous appeals. Instead, intermediaries for the family have demanded payment for its return to Italy.

The oil painting had been hanging as part of the Pitti Palace collection in Florence from 1824 until the outbreak of World War II. It was moved for safety during the war but was stolen by retreating German troops. It didn’t surface again until Germany’s reunification in 1991, when the offers to sell it back to Italy began.

“This story is preventing the wounds inflicted by World War II and the horrors of Nazism from healing,” said Schmidt, who is German. “Germany should not apply the statute of limitations to works of art stolen during the war, and it should take measures to ensure that those works are restored to their legitimate owners.”

He called it Germany’s “moral duty” to return to the artwork, adding, “I trust that the German government will do so at the earliest opportunity, naturally along with every other work of art stolen by the Nazi Wehrmacht.”

The best-played deal from last year

By Phillip Alder

The International Bridge Press Association's 2018 Keri Klinger Memorial Declarer Play of the Year Award was won by Boye Brogeland from Norway for making six hearts in this deal. How did he do it after West led a club?

The deal was played during the 2nd European Winter Games in Monaco last February. The original article about the deal was written by Mark Horton from England.

At the other table, North-South had made four hearts plus one. In the given auction, four clubs showed a singleton (or void), four diamonds just indicated some slam interest (Last Train), four no-trump was Roman Key Card Blackwood, five clubs showed one key card, five diamonds asked for the heart queen, and six diamonds promised that card and the diamond king, but denied a black-suit king.

In top tricks, declarer had one spade, six hearts and one club. He could establish at least one diamond winner, so he also needed spade ruffs on the board.

Brogeland won with dummy's club ace, ruffed a club and led a diamond. West took the trick and played the diamond jack. Declarer won with dummy's king and tried to cash the diamond queen, but East ruffed with the heart eight.

South overruffed, played off the spade ace, trumped a spade, trumped a club, trumped a spade, trumped a club (luckily, West could not overtrump) and trumped his last spade. East had the 10-two of hearts left and South the ace-seven. The lead of a diamond executed a trump coup.

Dead mute swans bring out anti-social media comments

By JEFF MAYES
(La Porte) Herald-Argus

La PORTE – In late November, La Porte resident and nature photographer Nancy Addie received a troubling message on Facebook. A friend sent pictures of a hunter with a dead mute swans, the same swans she’s been photographing for years.

The message: “Get all the swan pics you can there is a man on the island who has a permit to murder our swans... watched him shoot 3 just sleeping in the water. The family is a family that has been here for 5 yrs. not aggressive or mean. Actually kept the geese down... not right...”

So she put a post to her own Facebook page: “Can folks get a permit to shoot the swans that live on our lakes? WHY? What is the reason??”

A submitted photo from the Herald-Argus of South Bend TV station shooting video of Nancy Addie photographing mute swans on La Porte area lakes.

Addie, a wildlife lover, was appalled when she learned the Indiana Department of Natural Resources has issued a nuisance permit to the La Porte Area Lakes Association to cull the mute swans, which wildlife officials consider an invasive and aggressive species that damages the environment.

Her post continued: “I was wondering why I haven’t seen as many swans the last couple of months. Supposedly, ‘mute swans’ are considered non-native and invasive, thus open to hunters. This makes me very angry and sad if it’s true.”

That single post started what can only be called a firestorm of controversy – with backlash not only against the hunter and those who sided with wildlife officials – but against Addie herself and those who opposed killing the birds.

After that, you might say, the feathers really started to fly.

The hunter, who shot the swans legally and with full knowledge of IDNR Law Enforcement, became the subject of criticism and even threats. He refused to speak to The News-Dispatch, saying he wanted to protect himself and his family.

Then, as the swan photos and posts circulated across social media, Addie found herself the subject of criticism, sometimes nasty.

“She posted her pictures and thoughts on social media, and she did not realize it could get so ugly,” Chad Addie said, speaking for his wife. “The hunter said he was being threatened and it turned into a firestorm, and that is not at all what she was trying to do.”

His wife, just five days after the initial post, was feeling targeted.

“I’m weary with this swan thing,” she posted in early December. “There is so much misinformation out there about this/me, that I could scream (AARRGGHHH)!! The rumors, the accusations, name callings, making fun, slamming, etc... To clarify again...I put on my page passionately asking why is someone shooting the swans? Is it legal? What is the reason behind it? From the message I got about him shooting them and the pics of him dragging out their bodies that someone put on my page, made me mad and very upset. I gave the story the emotional side, (because hundreds of folks DO care besides me) DNR gave the reason and the why behind it.”

A South Bend TV station got wind of the story and came out to shoot video of her photographing the swans.

And the social media name-calling heated up.

A Facebook page called “Save the Swans La Porte” was created. The site criticized a recent story in The News-Dispatch as “grossly inaccurate,” saying, “Seems local writers, the IDNR and LaPorte Area Lake Association have little concern about facts.”

Shortly afterward, a second site, “Save the Swans La Porte Truth” went up on Facebook. Of the same article, the site posted: “Those people on that other page don’t want to listen to facts. They just want the swans to stay because they’re ‘pretty’...”

And because it’s social media, of course, a third site went up mocking the controversy: “La Porte County Deliciously Delectable Swan Recipes.”

Suddenly, Nancy Addie, whose photos of wildlife and scenery in La Porte County were featured on several local websites, found herself black-listed on some.

“One local news site attacked her and blocked her from their site,” Chad Addie said. “It doesn’t make sense. She just loves the lakes and the beauty of them. Now to have these websites attacking her, really going after her, when all she wants to do is keep being positive and put the area in a good light.”

Instead, she has been called everything from an “instigator” to a “crazy cat lady” to things much worse.

Chad Addie said it’s been appalling to read some of the things posted about his wife. And he said she’s even been heckled as she photographed wildlife around the lakes.

“People say ugly things but we try to stay positive,” he said. “Don’t wish ill will on anyone, not the hunter or anyone else. We spoke to him, wanted to know what was going on. That was the whole reason for the post, to find out what was happening and whether it was legal.”

He said they understand the thinking behind the culling, though they don’t agree with it.

“I grew up in an NRA-type family in Wisconsin,” Chad Addie said. “My dad owned the local gun store. And I understand the conservation side of all this. But what I don’t understand is why a few swans are considered a nuisance when you have hundreds of Canada geese that are overrunning the lakes.”

Jay Anglin, a local hunter with a biology degree, sees some irony in the situation.

He said mute swans were originally introduced as ornamental birds, placed in small ponds on private property “to mitigate goose issues.”

But, he said, as so often happens when people try to “out-think mother nature,” things went bad. So now there’s still an overabundance of Canada geese, and an overpopulation of mute swans as well.

And the social media fight?

“As for the social media aspect that is manifesting now ... Oh those beautiful swans! ... You know, they should have never been here in the first place,” Anglin said.

Nancy Addie, of course, feels differently, and still photographs the birds whenever she can.

“From what we can tell there is one pair left, and one juvenile left,” Chad Addie said. “We saw 20 or more at one time in the past, but now it appears there are only two or three left. It looks like it is down to one mating pair and they also want to destroy the eggs.”

For now, at least, those three will be safe. The nuisance wildlife permit that allowed the shooting of the birds expired on Dec. 31.

As for Nancy Addie, she will keep taking pictures.

“She just loves to capture the beauty and share the beauty of La Porte,” Chad Addie said. “She just wants to show La Porte in a good light, to share the beauty of what La Porte has.”

force and to continue working closely with the partnering agencies as sheriff.

Along with the task force, Thomas said he hopes to provide more training and better equipment to his officers whenever possible. He said officers have to attend training each year to keep their certifications, but that the training can be varied and allow officers to have a chance to learn more about specific areas and duties and hear from experts in different fields.

“You can attend a class or training and learn to pay attention to details you never would have before and they can make a big difference in the case,” said Thomas, explaining that officers can be new to the field or be veterans and still take valuable information away from a training.

“I’ve got a lot of people I can lean on for help,” said Thomas of his colleagues in his department and throughout other law enforcement agencies.

“When you’ve got him sitting right in there,” said Thomas, gesturing to the wall separating his office from Wallace’s, “it’s hard to be nervous about anything at this point because if I’m unsure on something, a man who served as sheriff for eight years is right there.”

SPORTS BRIEFS

Cards add 3 to coaching staff

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville has announced the returns of Cort Dennison and Stephen Field and the hiring of Chad Scott to Scott Satterfield's coaching staff.

Field, who compiled Louisville's 22-member 2018 class, was named recruiting director. Dennison, who built a reputation as one of the nation's top recruiters, will continue in that capacity along with being the Cardinals' co-defensive coordinator and outside linebackers coach. He spent last season with Oregon after coaching the previous four years at Louisville.

Scott will coach the Cardinals' running backs after guiding the tight ends at North Carolina the past three seasons. He also coached at Kentucky, where he played two seasons at running back before transferring to UNC.

UK's rebounds leader dies

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Bob Burrow, a two-time All-American whose per-game average of 17.7 rebounds remains a Kentucky single-season record, has died.

The school made the announcement in a release Friday, saying that Burrow died Thursday in Franklin, Tennessee. He was 84. No cause of death was given by the school or funeral home.

Burrow pulled down 459 rebounds in 26 games during the 1954-55 season. His 34 boards against Temple on Dec. 10, 1955 are tied with Billy Spivey for Kentucky's single-game mark. His 20.1-point scoring average ranks fourth in school history and his 823 rebounds rank 10th.

After transferring from Lon Morris Junior College in Texas, Burrow scored 1,023 points from 1954-56 with Kentucky. He earned Associated Press All-Southeastern Conference and All-American honors both seasons and was a charter member of the UK Athletics Hall of Fame in 2005. Burrow played two NBA seasons with the Rochester Royals and Minneapolis Lakers.

Crew names president, coach

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Columbus Crew has named Caleb Porter as head coach and Tim Bezbatchenko as its new president.

The moves come with a new ownership group led by Cleveland Browns owners Dee and Jimmy Haslam expected to take over and plans in the works for a new downtown stadium. The MLS team was at risk of being moved to Austin, Texas, by its present owners before the local group stepped in.

The 43-year-old Porter was head coach of the Portland Timbers from 2013-17, finishing there with a 68-50-52 record. Previously, he was head soccer coach at the University of Akron from 2006-12.

The 37-year-old Bezbatchenko was Toronto FC's vice president of soccer operations and general manager from 2013-18.

The Crew opens the season March 2.

Sponsor follows Truex to JGR

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Martin Truex Jr. landed Bass Pro Shops as sponsor for 24 races this season with Joe Gibbs Racing.

Bass Pro first partnered with Truex in 2001 and was on his car when he won the 2017 Cup Series championship with Furniture Row Racing. That team folded at the end of November because another sponsor left NASCAR and Furniture Row could not replace the funding.

It made Truex available to move to JGR, and Bass Pro will follow as his primary sponsor.

Truex will drive the No. 19 Toyota in Gibbs' four-car lineup.

Ganassi closing Xfinity team

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Chip Ganassi Racing has shuttered its Xfinity Series team because of a sponsorship issue that arose after the FBI raided DC Solar's headquarters and the home of the company owner.

DC Solar owner Jeff Carpoiff had pledged enough money to get driver Ross Chastain a fulltime ride in good equipment. Chastain won his first career Xfinity race in September at Las Vegas in a Ganassi car.

Ganassi said Friday his decision "comes with much anguish ... because it affects a number of good people's livelihoods ..."

Ganassi said its NASCAR Cup Series teams of Kyle Larson and Kurt Busch won't be impacted.

Red-hot start powers Rebs to 97-49 win

Southwestern entered the 2019 portion of the season ranked No.1 in Class 2A for the first time in school history. Playing its first game as the top dog on Friday night, the Rebels played the part.

Coming out of the gate red-hot and leading by 14 points at the end of the first quarter, Southwestern never let up on both ends of the floor and in the process put together an impressive 97-49 dismantling of border foe Trimble County at King Gymnasium.

"First game in school history ranked number one and it never bothered our guys one bit," Southwestern coach Jerry Bomholt said. "Right from warmups we came out focused and came out that way. I was really proud of our kids. We came out with good intensity."

Defense typically takes precedence when talking about the Rebels but the 97 points put up was impossible to overlook on this particular night.

Southwestern buried four 3-pointers in the first quarter en route to a 26-12 lead and the Rebels followed up with three more trifectas in the second

Warriors late surge denies Cubs, 55-54

By DAVID CAMPBELL

Courier Staff Writer

Madison let a three-point lead slip away in the final minute and a half and allowed Scottsburg to escape with a 55-54 win in boys basketball on Friday at Salm Gym.

The Cubs led most of the way but still found themselves trailing by three (46-43) with 5:12 remaining in the game before quickly battling back.

Nick Center blocked a Scottsburg shot then quickly led a fast break to convert on a three-point play and give Madison a 51-48 lead with 2:22 to go.

Nicholas Sebastio scored on a layup on the other end to pull Scottsburg to within one but any chances of Madison pulling out the win faded on the next three possessions.

The Cubs turned the ball over on the first possession with Sebastio making them pay on a hard drive to the basket to put the Warriors ahead 52-51 with 25 seconds to go.

Madison still had a chance but again turned the ball over — this time on a bad pass — and was forced to foul. Scottsburg's Jimmy Neace hit his first free throw but missed the second, but Hayden Cutter pulled down the offensive rebound to keep the ball in Scottsburg's possession.

Cutter was fouled and hit both free throws to push the lead to four and with just over six seconds to play to all but end the game. The Cubs' Luke Miller hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer for the final margin.

"I thought the refs let it go tonight which usually favors us but Scottsburg made a couple of more tougher plays down the stretch than we did," Madison

Oladipo's 3 edges Bulls 119-116, OT

By MATT CARLSON

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Victor Oladipo made a 3-pointer from just above the top of the arc with 0.3 seconds left in overtime to give the Indiana Pacers their sixth straight victory, 119-116 over the Chicago Bulls on Friday night.

Oladipo had 36 points and seven rebounds, and Domantas Sabonis added 23 points and 12 rebounds in the first game of a five-game trip.

Chicago's Zach LaVine hit a 3-pointer from the corner, but after time ran out in the extra period.

LaVine led Chicago with 31 points. He made two 3-pointers in the closing moments of regulation to tie it at 105 and send it overtime. He hit the first 3 with 17.3 seconds left from outside the left side of the arc, then knotted it with 3.9 seconds remaining from almost the same spot.

Indiana's Thaddeus Young had 16 points, including several key baskets down the stretch in the fourth quarter, to help the Pacers overcome an early 12-point deficit.

Lauri Markkanen had 27 points, and Kris Dunn had 16 points and 17 assists for Chicago.

Chicago led 78-75 heading into the fourth quarter, but Indiana grabbed a six-point lead with 1:12 left when Sabonis hit a pair of free throws. LaVine then tied it

TRADE FALLOUT

Guards MarShon Brooks and Wayne Selden Jr., acquired by the Bulls in a trade Thursday that sent guard Justin Holiday to Memphis, has not yet joined Chicago. The Grizzlies also sent second-round picks in 2019 and 2020 to the rebuilding Bulls. Chicago waived guard Cameron Payne in another move.

"What we did last night was consistent with our direction," Executive Vice President-Basketball Operations John Paxson said before Friday. "Getting the two second-round picks was important to us. We're going to keep Wayne Selden. He's a young player and we'll see what he develops into. It's a deal we felt we had to make."

Coach Jim Boylen wasn't yet sure where the 24-year-old Selden, whom he called a "big thick dude," will fit in.

YOUTH TO THE FRONT

Chandler Hutchison, a 22-year-old rookie forward, moved into Chicago's young lineup and made his fourth start this season. Hutchison and the Bulls' four other starters — Markkanen, Wendel Carter Jr., LaVine and Dunn — were all first-round picks.

Twisters sweep Hilltoppers twinbill

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Oldenburg Academy rolled up a pair of lopsided wins in a girls-boys varsity basketball doubleheader at Shawe Memorial on Friday night at the Meny Gym.

The girls game was close for a half as the Twisters led the Lady Hilltoppers just 26-21 at the intermission while the boys game got out of hand well before halftime after Class A No. 7 Oldenburg outscored the Hilltoppers 26-7 in the second quarter to seize a 38-14 lead at the break.

In the end, Oldenburg's girls posted a 57-37 win to improve to 9-7 on the season while the boys rolled Shawe 60-29 for their eighth win in 10 games.

The night opened with the girls matchup where a shootout ensued between top scorers Kate Grote of Shawe and Katie Kinker of Oldenburg. Kinker ended up getting the best of that battle by outscoring Grote 26-22 for game-high honors. Grace McAllister netted 10 points to give the Hilltoppers two players in double figures but the Twisters put seven players in the scoring column while Shawe dressed just seven for the game and saw only four contribute points as the Twisters depth prevailed.

In the boys game Oldenburg knocked down nine 3-pointers to none by the Hilltoppers for a plus-27 advantage from long range. Oldenburg was also 15-of-19 at the free-throw line to the Hilltoppers' 11-of-21.

Oldenburg's Jacob Johnson, a 6-foot-4 junior, led all scorers with 17 points while Andrew Oesterling added 10 and Pros Moorman and Dempsy Bohman came off the Twisters' bench for eight points each.

Shawe's Ethan Stuart battled his way to a team-high 14 point but no other Hilltopper was close to double figures.

Shawe's girls now visit Henryville (3-14) on Tuesday while the Hilltopper boys are at Providence tonight. The Pioneers (5-6) are coming off a 54-48 win over Clarksville last night.

period, outscoring Trimble 29-10 for an overwhelming 55-22 halftime advantage.

Six players entered the score column in the first half including two starters in double figures. Matthew Williams — who scored 10 points in the first quarter — dropped 17 points while Tyler Kramer put in 14 points.

The two combined for five threes and Foster Mefford, alongside Austin Kramer, combined for 16 points in the half and two more threes.

“We shot the ball very well,” Bomholt said. “We’ve gotten to the point in our program where we always want to make the extra pass. Nobody on this team is selfish and it doesn’t matter to them who scores. We’re always looking to make the extra pass that leads to an easy basket and we did that well tonight.”

Williams’ hot shooting hand continued into the third quarter as the Rebels outscored the Raiders 24-12. Williams added 11 more points including a trifecta of threes and Mefford jetted out in transition for six points. Tyler Kramer dropped another long bomb to the tune of five points in the quarter.

Southwestern ended the night adding 18 more points in the fourth quarter. Trimble trailed by as many as 51 points, electing to sit on the ball for the final minute to negate the Rebels from reaching the 100-point plateau. The Raiders got the final say in the game on a 3-point bucket as the buzzer sounded.

Trimble put three players in double figures. Evan Stevens scored his game-high 14 points in the second half and Grant Weaver scored 10 of his 12 points in the first half. Reece Webster, Trimble’s leading scorer, put in his 10 points in the first two quarters but was held scoreless in the final two.

The Rebels’ defense quietly and very simply never allowed Trimble much rhythm on the offensive end. The Raiders turned the ball over at various points in the game including seven in the first quarter that allowed Southwestern its early double-digit lead.

“Defensively we kept it very simple,” Bomholt said. “We ran two different traps both in the first half. We never full-court pressed, we never ran a half-court trap or a three-quarter court trap.”

Williams led all scorers with a career-high 31 points, finishing the night with seven 3-pointers. Tyler Kramer added 21 points while Mefford finished with 15 points and Zach Cole put in 12.

Southwestern (12-1) faces a big road test tonight, visiting 1A No. 11 Lanesville.

Trimble (5-8) opens the All “A” Classic Eighth Region Tournament at home against Owen County on Tuesday.

The two teams were neck-and-neck the entire way. After playing to a 17-17 tie after one quarter, Gallatin took a 31-29 lead at halftime. Carroll then turned the tables in the third period to lead 47-45 heading into the final quarter.

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Switzerland County’s girls basketball team pulled away for a 44-31 win over Rising Sun to claim third place in the Rivertown Classic at South Dearborn on Friday.

Switzerland got off to a big start and led 40-23 after three quarters. The Pacers scored only four points in the fourth but were never threatened.

Aleiah Thomas scored 22 points to lead Switzerland while Maddie Duvall and Jaden Harrell scored five points each. Rylee Hankins had four points, Josie Meyer and Jessie Duvall scored three each, and Lexi Lay scored two.

Class 3A No. 9 Lawrenceburg (18-1) defeated South Dearborn (9-10) 56-22 in the Rivertown championship.

Switzerland (9-7) hosts Southwestern on Thursday.

Christian Academy scored the first 10 points of the game and rolled to a 59-21 win over Columbus Christian in the Defenders’ first-ever Southern Roads Conference contest.

Freshman Clay Carter scored 17 points to lead CAM while big brother Luke had 15. Freshman Jaxon Miller chipped in eight points.

Christian Academy (7-8 overall, 1-0 SRC) visits Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg (Ky.) on Tuesday.

Dunn, who’s 24, is the oldest in the group. Carter is the youngest at 19.

“(The trade) gives Chandler Hutchison an opportunity to play,” Paxson said. “He’ll have to meet the standards Jim (Boylen) and we want, but he’ll get the opportunity.”

TIP-INS

Pacers: C Miles Turner was back in the starting lineup, wearing a face mask, after breaking his nose in a collision with Atlanta forward-center John Collins midway through the third quarter of a 116-108 win Monday in Indianapolis. Turner had 20 points, eight rebounds and blocked four shots in less than 24 minutes in that game, then needed only a brief medical procedure to fix his nose. “I’m feeling great,” Turner said before Friday’s game. “Excited to get out there.”

Bulls: F Bobby Portis (sprained right ankle) missed his seventh straight game but might return Sunday when the Bulls host Brooklyn. Portis will have another contact day on Saturday. “It does look good,” coach Jim Boylen said, “but I’m not going to bank on it.” ... F Jabari Parker entered the game in the first quarter after not playing since Dec. 13 at Orlando (nine games) due to illness and coaching decisions.

coach Mark McFarland said. “(Sebastio) hit a big and-one on the baseline, they had a couple of offensive rebounds and they just made a couple of more plays than we did.”

Madison (7-3) hadn’t played a game in nearly two weeks, a contest in which the Cubs shredded Southwestern’s zone defense to score a 72-61 upset win over the then Class 2A No. 2 and now No. 1 Rebels.

Madison looked just as comfortable against Scottsburg’s zone on Friday — at least in the first half — as the Cubs hit half of their 16 shots from behind the arc over the game’s first 16 minutes with Cooper Yancey and Mason Welsh making three each.

But that outside shooting went ice-cold in the second half and other than Miller’s trey at the buzzer, Madison made only one more trey in the game. The result was the Cubs fell behind 42-41 after three quarters.

“Coming off the (holiday) break, they weren’t in game shape and they struggled at times,” McFarland said. “We had some sickness but I wouldn’t blame sickness for anything. Some guys just have to step up and make a couple of more plays.”

Yancey, who scored 17 points in the first half, finished the game with 21 and went just 2-of-10 from the field in the second half and 9-of-23 for the game. Welsh, meanwhile missed all three of his second-half attempts and finished with nine points.

Center had a strong all-around game for the Cubs, scoring 10 points and pulling down seven rebounds and blocking three shots.

Sebastio, a former Madison Junior High player and the son of former Lady Cub standout Kathy Hay, scored 25 points on 10-of-18 shooting and had nine rebounds — all game-highs — while Cutter finished with 15 points for the Warriors, now 8-2.

Madison hits the road for just its second back-to-back weekend when the Cubs head to Charlestown tonight. The Pirates fell to 6-4 on the season after a 54-42 loss to Seymour on Friday.
